

PROJECT MANAGEMENT FOR CHANGE

Hold the date!

9th Annual D.C. Regional PROJECT MANAGEMENT DAY OF SERVICE®

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 18, 2023

Virtual

Nonprofit registration opens December 5, 2022

Project Manager registration opens January 9, 2023

www.pm4change.org

Project Management Day of Service ®

(PMDoS) is the signature event of Project Management for Change. The first PMDoS was held in 2015 in the Washington, D.C. area, and was organized by a group of project managers interested in civic engagement and furthering their beloved profession. This group became Project Management for Change (PM4Change). At that first event, 300 project management volunteers provided pro bono services to 100 local nonprofits. It was a massive success, creating seismic waves that are still being felt throughout the community.

On February 18, 2023, PM4Change will again partner with the University of Maryland Project Management Center for Excellence to host the Project Management Day of Service. Together, we will help nonprofits address their most pressing projects and initiatives.

How does it work?

The Project Management Day of Service pairs each nonprofit with a team of two to four experienced project managers. Participants spend the day scoping a project to address a critical need of the nonprofit, and the nonprofit leaves with an actionable plan.

This is an extremely high-impact and meaningful way for project managers to give back to the community.

Have questions?

See our PMDoS FAQ at <https://www.pm4change.org/faqs/#pmdosfaq> or contact us at dcquestions@PM4Change.org.

In proud partnership with:

PROJECT MANAGEMENT
CENTER FOR EXCELLENCE
A.J. CLARK SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING
Civil & Environmental Engineering Department

Project Management for Change is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization whose mission is to unleash the boundless potential of the Project Management discipline to empower and transform communities around the world. Join us in changing the world, one project at a time! Visit www.PM4Change.org today for more information.

The Project Management Center for Excellence at the University of Maryland offers a variety of Project Management education options for working engineers, architects and technical professionals. In addition to degree programs, the Center also offers several professional development opportunities including the annual two-day Project Management Symposium in May. Learn more at <https://pm.umd.edu>.

Get involved!

- Sign up to participate in this game-changing event.
- Invite others to participate.
- Encourage your company to become a sponsor.
- Make a cash donation. Note: all financial support is used for expenses associated with running the event.
- Make an in-kind donation. We welcome donations of raffle prizes and event supplies.

Please visit www.PM4Change.org to get more information or make a cash donation. To make an in-kind donation or inquire about sponsorship, please email us at: dcquestions@PM4Change.org.

What's in it for you?

Nonprofits: Receive mission-focused project management support (and have fun)!

- Get help with building a concrete, practical plan to address an important challenge.
- Strengthen your network of potential volunteers and supporters.
- Exchange ideas with other nonprofits.

PMs: Give back to your community (and have fun)!

- Use your project management skills to make a difference in your community.
- Network with nonprofits, other project managers, and sponsors.
- Earn Professional Development Units (PDUs) to maintain your PMP certification*.

Note: PMP certification is not required to participate in this event.*